

will be held in Istanbul on May 6–7, 2016. The HISTORY '16 / 3rd International History Conference conference will be coordinated by DAKAM (Eastern Mediterranean Academic Research Center) and a special focus will be on 'Representing the Past: Historiography'.

What is the influence of theory on historical research? How have the theories, perspectives and methods been changed throughout the centuries and according to culture and politics? Alongside the way historians look at the history and historical research, the ideological background of historical narratives and their public perception will also be discussed.

In addition to the historiography as the main topic archives, archival research and documentation will also be taken into consideration. As the way of extracting evidence from original archival records affects the end results of a study, historical studies should also be integrated with the theory of archival research.

We invite historians and scholars working on historiography to attend and submit proposals to present their work at the HISTORY '16 Conference.
